Howdy, all.

My name is Michael. I am a proud, lifelong Monterey Park resident.

Recently, while walking my 11-month-old daughter to the Atlantic Times Square, a speeding Tesla barreled through the intersection of Hellman and Chandler, knocking me back and launching my baby 15 feet into the air. Luckily, I possess superhuman-like abilities and was able to jump into the sky to save my precious baby daughter from any harm, the two of us floating gently back to the ground.

Obviously, none of this happened, but it COULD and nearly HAS happened on multiple occasions, because the intersection of Hellman and Chandler has no stop sign, no speed bump, no traffic deterrent at all, despite being a 3-way intersection that leads from – arguably – our city's busiest street.

In fact, only a few weeks ago there were 3 days of consecutive car accidents at the intersection of Hellman and Chandler, 2 of which resulted in both bodily harm and damage to property. Yikes.

I'm hoping, pleading, begging that something can be done to help mitigate these accidents (e.g. a stop sign put in place, or red-painted curbs on Hellman to deflect obstructive parking). I understand that the intersection of Hellman and Chandler rests on the Monterey Park / Alhambra border which makes any meaningful changes to the street difficult, but maybe someone in the Alhambra city government accepts bribes? They seem pretty corrupt over there. Just kidding.

Thank you for your time.
